"Nobody living in Manitoba 20 years ago will ever accept the current fallacy about Nellie McClung that she is wishy-washy; for in bringing the Roblin Government to destruction she showed more pluck than any man in the province and equal intelligence. Of the filthy abuse poured on her, all fortunately is forgotten, leaving only the derisive tag, "Calamity Nell", to carry abroad the suggestion of a virago, which is as false a notion of the author of "Sowing Seeds in Danny" as that she is too sweet. The truth is that she has a lively mind, strong character, and a keen sense of humour."—William A. Deacon.

"A successful writer she has long been, and has revealed humanity and done much to ameliorate conditions about her."—late T. G. Marquis.

"To Dr. Ellice McDonald of the University of Pennsylvania's Graduate School of Medicine belongs the distinction of first applying in medicine and biology a method which has succeeded brilliantly in industry. He has long been concerned with cancer. It was borne in upon him that the problems presented by that scourge are not likely to be solved by one man. They involve a thorough knowledge of biology, chemistry, physics, cell structure and growth. Yet there is no concerted attack on cancer. Applying the principles that have given us the electric lamp, transatlantic telephoning and synthetic gasoline, he reorganized the Cancer Research Laboratories under his direction so that some forty-eight specialists could work in teams."—New York Times.

Am., at the same time studying bird life; has appeared before such socs. as, The Am. Camp Fire Club, Am. Game Protective Assn., Chestnut Hill Gdn. Club, Audubon Socs., Isaac Walton League and practically all the leading bird protective clubs in Can. and Northern U.S.; has caught and tagged wild Candn. geese to study their route and migration; has invented his own traps for use in destroying thousands of crows and starlings, and other birds destructive to crops and wild life; organ. the Jack Miner Migratory Bird Foundation Inc. to insure the continuance of his work; his sanctuary attracts thousands of visitors annually and each year thousands of dollars is spent feeding the game which voluntarily come to the Miner Sanctuary for food and shelter; author of "Jack Miner and the Birds", 1923, and "Jack Miner on Current Topics", 1927; United Church; recreation baseball; Address Kingsville, Ont.

"Let it be granted that others before Jack Miner's time and during the generation that has grown up since his experiments began, have done much good work in the same line. Yet, it remains true, in this as in every form of advance, that one person stands forth in the public eye as embodying the whole movement. Not Watt, but a succession of inventors made the steam engine; not Bell but many electrical experiments made the telephone. Jack Miner, in this sense has given us the bird sanctuary."—Ottawa Citizen.

"It is no exaggeration to say that the sanctuary of Jack Miner at Kingsville is world famous. From all quarters of this continent and from the lands beyond the sea visitors each year make a pilgrimage to this shrine at Kingsville to view a work the fame of which has travelled far and wide. Mr. Miner is to-day one of the great naturalists of the world, and has been the means of instilling in countless young hearts a deep and lasting love of birds and all the wild things of nature."—T. Globe.

"Jack Miner lightly calls his bird sanctuary a wild goose cafeteria but it is the greatest achievement of its kind in North America. It has won its creator international fame but he prizes that less than what it has done for the conservation of the feathered wild life of this continent."—London, Ont., Advertiser.

"This generation knows Sir William as a blithe, white-haired gentleman, fond of ceremonials, happy of speech, earnest, sincere and sound in his relations to the community and the Dominion."—T. Globe.

"Is destined to become a legendary figure in Canadian traditions."—T. Star.

"It might truly be said that no other living Canadian has left so great an impress upon so many and such varied pages of his country's history."—T. Star.

"He is a true—and a great—gentleman; a gentleman not only in the accepted sense, but in the full measure of Ruskin's definition of gentlemanliness: 'another word for intense humanity.' For he has always been intensely interested in his fellow beings; has made the humblest of them feel at home in his presence; has found common ground on which to meet and common interests to discuss."—T. Star.

"He is a great intellect, but it is not an intellect which has confined itself to one central theme of thought or one restricted field of endeavour. He has found room for agriculture and law, for education and finance, for statesmanship and the humanities. He is broad-minded not only in the sense of tolerance, but in his ability to think keenly upon a multitude of unrelated subjects."—T. Star.

"The riotous energy and hilarity of his long objective poems is overwhelming. The terrific tempo of his dramatization, its breathtaking incidence, striking pictorial quality, and amazing rhetorical vocabulary occasionally reach exalted moments, as in "The Titans". Pratt's best work, however, is to be found in the more restrained "Newfoundland Verse", parts of the sea epic "The Roosevelt and the Antinoc", and above all in "The Iron Door". There is no reason why we should not have in Pratt the long awaited poet who will turn our national epic of character and incident into fine swinging ballads."—Lorne Pierce.

"Has brought to the special field of the sea narrative a power and originality of the first degree."—William A. Deacon.

"For many years a fearless and consistent advocate for reform of the traditional, standardized school system, which he contended did not make sufficient allowance for the widely varying talents, intellects and personalities of the pupils, Dr. Putnam has been instrumental in introducing radical changes in the curricula of the schools under his jurisdiction, and he has had the satisfaction of seeing many of his ideas generally adopted throughout the Province. He believes that while one cannot equalize children's mental power, yet by introducing a sufficiently varied programme to meet their varying aptitudes, one can to a certain extent equalize their opportunities. He has, therefore, specially encouraged school libraries, excursions to points of interest, gardening, manual and domestic training, vocal and instrumental music, and any activities of a practical or cultural nature."—*S. "Is master of the art of pictorial decoration."—Candn. Meth. Mag.

"No one has successfully challenged his supremacy in technique, colour, composition or the striking individuality of atmosphere which almost place his pictures in a class of their own."—T. News.

"Everyone who knows must acknowledge that for at least thirty years in Canada, George A. Reid has been the outstanding champion of art and of the importance that artistic application imparts to many of our common day-by-day activities. Not content with impressing the people's need of painting, which is his profession, he has striven to get an expression of art into our buildings, into our parks and highways, into our civic life, into manufactures, and indeed into many contrivances that we are only too prone to regard as being exclusively utilitarian. Perhaps more than any other person, he has striven to arouse Canadians to the importance of mural decoration, beginning as early as 1894."—Newton MacTavish.

"As a banker he is clear-sighted, constructive and withal conservative but, while the bank and the advancement of its interests were ever his first concern, he succeeded in being much more than a banker. His abounding energy, his commanding physique and his unflinching interest in everything tending to the development of Canada and the good of the Empire made him an important public figure wherever he went. In the work of the Church of England and in the field of philanthropy he was ever an outstanding figure and a leader. The Bank owes much of its strong position in the West to Mr. Rowley's indefatigable efforts in the early days. During the War he made a notable contribution to the cause of the Empire. In the later years of his service in the Bank he was regarded as a fearless administrator with an unusual capacity for getting results. His retirement will leave him free for still wider prosecution of those activities for the public welfare and development of the country, with which he has been so long identified."—S. H. Logan.

"A Canadian epic worthy to rank with the sagas of Knut Hamsun. A novel of quite unusual quality and quiet power. A very real and tender-hearted book." — The Observer (London, Eng.) of "The Viking Heart".

"More story than language applies to no Canadian novelist except Laura G. Salverson, and is best exemplified in "The Dove". It should be immensely popular as a relief both from the tame domesticities of the Canadian novel and from the psychological subtleties of the modern novel in general." — William Arthur Deacon.

"Mrs Salverson has done for the Icelandic immigrants and their children what Louis Hemon did for the French Canadian pioneers of Northern Quebec, in his "Maria Chapdelaine". She has expressed pioneer life as it was heroically and nobly lived. The author has not only a brilliant mind, she has a big, warm heart, full of sympathy for struggling humanity. She has lived intensely and profited much from the lessons of life." — late John W. Garvin.

"She is gifted with a keen insight into character and a very quick intelligence." — Candn. Bookman.

"Thanks to her racial inheritance, Mrs. Salverson is the most vigorous and naturally dramatic of our novelists." — William A. Deacon.
